COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

Again taxpayers should keep in mind interest on unpaid taxes commences Dec. 1. The Town Office will not be open the last day of November as that is a Saturday. Any unpaid balance will be subject to 6% interest retroactive to Oct. 1.

The Planning Board has been asked to approve a subdivision in the area of the cemetery on Bird Hill. A developer wants to sell four lots for residential use. A meeting is planned for this Wednesday evening.

We have found the state is sending 1975 registration forms to individuals who own trailers. This is causing confusion with the people who have travel trailers as they are subject to excise or personal property tax and there is no indication on the form they must pay anything.

It appears these people will receive their registration by simply sending the form in with the necessary amount for the plate. What should be kept in mind is that the Assessors will have to check and find out who paid excise tax. Those who don't will be subject to a personal property tax.

SERVICE PLAQUE ERECTED ON ANDOVER COMMON

On Nov. 14 the third service plaque, on a field stone monument, was erected on the Andover Common in front of the band stand and to the left of the flag pole.

At the regular town meeting in March Violet P. Swain suggested that a third memorial be set up for the men and women in the armed services from 1953-1974. At a later special town meeting, money was appropriated for this project with Mrs. Swain, Fire Chief Roger Mills Jr., and George W. Chase as a committee to take care of the details.

The new bronze plaque reads "In Honor of those from Andover, Maine, who served in the Armed Forces from August 1953 to June 1974." There are 91 names on the plaque with only one star.

A search for a flat faced rock ended when Mr. Chase found a suitable one on the Phillip M. Learned land.

During the summer some of the Andover Fire Department members with the help of Road Commissioner Wilbur Cheney and helper Linwood Tucker, using the town equipment, set the stone in a cement foundation and graded the area. This monument was the third set on the common.

The first monument was for men and women serving from Andover between 1914-1918. There were 51 names and only two with stars.

The second monument was for World War II veterans dated Dec. 1941 to Sept. 1945 with 103 names and six stars. On the lower half

District 63 Recount Affirms Result of Nov. 5 Vote

Emily Saunders of Bethel became the Representative-elect to the House of Representatives from District 63, on Friday, Nov. 22, at the conclusion of a recount of votes cast in the Nov. 5 election. The recount process provides a check on the accuracy of local ballot clerks and town officials in the case of a very close or disputed election. The recount is requested by one of the candidates, in this case J. Jay Willard, who pays a fee based on the number of votes cast. In the case of the legislative race in District 63, out of almost 2500 votes involved, Mrs. Emily Saunders led by a slim 43 vote margin.

Recounts take place in the State Office Building in Augusta. Ballots from each town, packed in special cartons by local officials, are collected by State Troopers and driven to Augusta where they are subject to strict security. Room 105, where the District 63 recount took place, was under particularly heavy guard as it contained ballots for the Kyros-Emery recount in the First Congressional District.

Within the chamber, the candidates and their recount teams were identified by badges and scrutinized by State Police. Closed circuit television monitored activities in the room and Election Division Chief Peter Damborg and a staff of six workers supervised the procedure. As each carton of ballots was opened, counsel for Mr. Willard, Michael Barr, and counsel for Mrs. Saunders, Michael O'Donnell, inspected the contents, and once satisfied that there were no irregularities, handed each packet to a table where it was opened, sorted, counted and cross-counted by a team composed of a Republican, a Democrat, and a staff worker. Acting as counters for Mrs. Saunders were Cathy Newell, Paul McGuire, Olive Moore, and for Mr. Willard, Stanley Howe, Linda Sharp, and George Chase.

Any ballots open to challenge for distinguishing marks, illegibility, or other reasons were set aside to await the decision of attorneys Barr and O'Donnell, and in case of disagreement, the final word of Mr. Damborg. There were relatively few ballots set aside for inspection and in almost all cases, the ballots ended up being included in the count. Tallies were made for each packet and the final totals were arrived at by a clerk and an adding machine.

After two and a half hours, the official results emerged, with Mrs. Saunders the winner by 44 votes. Totals for each candidate were: Mrs. Saunders, 1,270; Mr. Willard, 1,226. As this differs by a single vote from the original totals arrived at by individual towns, it would seem that poll workers in District 63 were competent in discharging their duties.

After the candidates had indicated agreement with the results, the ballots were re-sealed in their cartons to be stored for three months in case of further legal complications, at which time they will be recycled.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE TO MEET SUNDAY, DEC. 1

The Bethel Democratic Town Committee will meet on Sunday, Dec. 1 at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Emily Saunders. This will be a short meeting devoted to final plans for the Thank-You party planned for an evening in December. WHAT'S A "NURSING MOTHERS GROUP"?

A Nursing Mothers Group is a gathering of mothers who have decided to breastfeed their babies, and who want to help each other to learn more about it.

Fine, but why is such a group necessary?

It is not unusual in our society for a woman to marry and become pregnant, and yet never see a mother nurse her baby. If such an expectant mother should decide to breastfeed, she may not know anyone who has successfully breastfed who could answer her many questions. True, there are excellent books available on the subject, but there is no substitute for people-to-field questions, to offer encouragement and support.

So, the Nursing Mothers Group in Rumford has been formed to fill this need. Informal meetings are held about once a month, at the home of Louise Stickney, 213 Penobscot Street. The next meeting is scheduled for Dec. 5, at 2:00 p. m. The meeting is open to all women wanting to learn about breastfeeding. Don't worry about baby-sitters, just bring the children with you. Questions? Call Louise Stickney at 284-4241, or Jennifer Cohen at 284-8922.

There will be an Advent Workshop at the church, Sunday, Dec. 1, from 2-5 p. m. Activities for people of all ages and all are welcome. We will conclude with a lunch, beverages provided.

TURKEY DINNER WITH TICKET AT SUNDAY RIVER SKIWAY

Sunday River Ski Area in Bethel, Maine, will offer a free turkey dinner, complete with sausage stuffing and candied yams to every skier who purchases an all-day lift ticket this Thanksgiving Day.

The staff at Sunday River invite every skier to have Thanksgiving dinner with them after skiing at 4:30 p. m. in the Base Lodge Dining Room on Thursday, Nov. 28.

As of this week end Sunday River's main mountain and Mixing Bowl Novice Slope are both open after receiving up to 14 inches of new powder on Thursday over a four inch base of natural and man-made snow.

Sunday River was the first area in Maine to provide skiing this season, opening November 18 with manmade snow on the Mixing Bowl Slope after only 12 hours of continuous snowmaking operation.

This year Sunday River completed a major expansion of its snowmaking plant and now has machine made snow coverage from the top of the 3,500 foot double chairlift to the base lodge 1,500 feet below.

With snowmaking on the 1 1/2 mile Ecstasy-Cascade Intermediate Trail from the mountain top and on the Mixing Bowl Novice Slope, Sunday River can expect to have another long season again this year, after a record long year of 100 continuous skiing days last season.

With so much new snow Junior skiers in the Sunday River Junior Racing and Freestyle programs can look forward to a good start this season when the Junior Racing Program holds its first clinic this week end on Sunday, Dec. 1.

THREE FROM COUNTY NAMED STATE 4-H REPRESENTATIVES

Three Oxford County 4-H members have been selected State 4-H Representatives. Each year, 4-H members all over Maine have the opportunity to compete for state honors in over 20 4-H project areas. This year, Alice Colby, Oxford; Susan Lohrop, South Paris; and Polly Tarbell, Stow, were judged tops.

Alice Colby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Colby, Oxford, was selected State Representative in the 4-H Beef project. Alice has carried the beef project for five years. She is also an officer in county and state 4-H groups. Alice will represent the State of Maine at National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Dec. 17.

Susan Lohrop was judged State Representative in Safety. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Lohrop, South Paris, and is a Freshman at the University of Maine. Susan has been a member and leader of the Fun and Learn 4-H Club in South Paris for 10 years. She will represent the State of Maine in Safety at National 4-H Congress.

Pauline Tarbell was selected state winner in the Bicycle project. Her records have been entered in Northeast Regional Competition, where the winner represents the region at National 4-H Congress. Polly's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roger Tarbell, of Stow, Maine, and she has been a 4-H member-at-large for 10 years, and is very active in the local Bicycle Club.

One of the key reasons for President Ford's veto was my amendment which will allow Federal judges to examine secret material on request, to determine whether it should be made public.

President Ford thought that the judges should be restricted in their review of secret information, but I think we can have enough confidence in the judiciary to trust their judgement on whether the public should have access to information which is classified.

Judges would examine the material in private, and I cannot imagine a Federal judge throwing open the gates to the nation's classified secrets on a whim.

But if there is no possibility of judicial review, or if the review process is limited, then those who classify government secrets—and there are literally thousands of them—are put above the law.

There is no question that we must increase public access to government decisions and information. And there is no question that if we allow the classification system to be used indiscriminately and without possibility of review, our efforts to increase public access would not mean much.

I am confident that the amendments passed by the Congress last week will put some real teeth in our Freedom of Information law.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:
I want to express my sincere thanks to the Bethel Rescue Unit who transferred me from a broken down ambulance in Gilead and delivered me to the Maine Medical Center in the late hours of Nov. 21.

I have always admired the dedicated efforts of a Rescue Team, but this is the first time I have had the need to receive their services.

The Town of Bethel is fortunate to have such a responsive team to serve its community.

A TRUE STORY

Nov. 23, 1974

Once upon a time a school organization known as the Drama Club decided to put on a production. They chose two one act plays and a reading of poetry. For two months they rehearsed and sweated, built props and made costumes for the production. It cost quite a lot of money, time, and effort.

For two nights in a row the Drama Club put on this production. Backstage on the second night, they were shocked, saddened, and angered to discover that a few people sneaked in without paying the modest sum toward the cost of the production.

How dishonest! What disappointment to a bunch of hard-working high school students who believed in their audience to think that fellow members of the human race could do such a thing.

Isn't it bad enough to be dishonest where you hurt only yourself—but to hurt a group of kids like that—that takes a lot of gall!

FEW IN NORTH COUNTRY COMMENTING ON PLANS FOR KILKENNY AREA

The United States Forest Service is planning for the future of White Mountain National Forest lands in the Kilkenny area. Only a few people from the North Country are taking the time to respond to the Forest Service on how they think the area should be managed.

Joe Michaels, Forest Planner for the White Mountain National Forest, commented on the lack of interest from the North Country. "We have sent out news releases to most of the newspapers and radio stations and a large number of individuals throughout New England asking people to write us if they are interested in commenting on the land management direction for the Kilkenny area. We are getting quite a number of responses from Massachusetts, southern New Hampshire, and the rest of New England. Up to this point, we have had only one response from an individual living in the North Country. Now is the time for the people living near Kilkenny to provide their ideas to the plan, not after the plan is completed. We are again asking for input of interested individuals from the towns surrounding the Kilkenny area."

Local people who want to receive material from the Forest Service so that they may comment on the management of Kilkenny can write or call the Forest Service in Gorham, N. H. (phone 466-2281), or write to the Forest Supervisor, P. O. Box 638, Laconia, N. H. 03246.

Harold Mountain from Groveland is leading a fourteen-member working group trying to help the Forest Service arrive at land management alternatives for the Kilkenny forest area. The working group is made up of individuals representing a cross-section of interest both

BILL COHEN From Congress

A generation ago the Western world faced an historic crisis—the breakdown of international order in the wake of world war. Threatened by economic chaos and political upheaval, the nations of the West built a system of security relations and cooperative institutions that have nourished our safety, our prosperity, and our freedom ever since. A moment of grave crisis was transformed into an act of lasting creativity.

"We face another such moment today. The stakes are as high as they were 25 years ago."

The words are those of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. They refer to the international energy crisis, which is continually complicated by the artificially high oil price structure imposed by the Arab nations.

Like other thoughtful leaders of the international community, Dr. Kissinger believes that the current oil price structure poses a threat to the peace and prosperity of the entire world.

Due to increases in the cost of oil, the industrial nations now face a collective balance of payments deficit of more than $40 billion for the current year. Largely as a result of this, the United States, are suffering dangerous reductions in production and employment and a ravaging speed-up in the rate of inflation.

The impoverished and developing nations also feel the sting of high oil prices. Their heightened petroleum costs reduce their ability to produce the food and industrial development upon which their survival depends.

For more than a year now, the United States has been negotiating to secure a reduction in international petroleum prices. But one nation alone—no matter how great or powerful it may be—does not have the economic leverage to force the producing nations to lower their prices. The major oil nations now enjoy a balance of trade surplus of roughly $90 billion—far more money than they are able to utilize or invest.

Thus, even if the United States were to refuse to import any oil at all, the oil cartel would still possess surplus revenues.

Since the oil-exporting nations operate as a bloc, Dr. Kissinger argues, the countries that rely on imports must also join together if they are to succeed in negotiating a fair price. Only through solidarity, he says, can the importing nations achieve the combined economic muscle to receive fair hearing at the bargaining table.

Dr. Kissinger also asserts that the importing nations must enter cooperative efforts to develop new and alternative energy sources.

These are new and challenging

PFC. WHITE STATIONED AT CAMP LEJEUNE, N. C.

Marine Pfc. Howard R. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. White of Bethel, reported for duty Nov. 19, at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N. C.

A former student of Telstar High School, Bethel, he joined the Marine Corps in February, 1974.

ideas, which will demand debate and possibly refinement before they can be accepted as national policy. But these are new and challenging times, which place great demands on the United States.

I think that Dr. Kissinger has given perhaps the finest summary of the challenge that confronts the world, but especially the United States:

"A great responsibility rests upon America, for without our dedication and leadership no progress is possible. This Nation, for many years, has carried the major responsibility for maintaining the peace, feeding the hungry, sustaining international economic growth, and inspiring those who would be free. We did not seek this heavy burden, and we have often been tempted to put it down. But we have never done so, and we cannot afford to do so now—or the generations that follow will pay the price for our self-indulgence."

Speedy Trial Act

A bill I sponsored, The Speedy Trial Act of 1974, is designed to provide greater efficiency in the functioning of the nation's Federal Courts.

Contrasted with the present situation, where defendants may wait up to three years before coming to trial, my bill would insure that the guilty are speedily punished and the innocent freed.

I am pleased to report that the House Judiciary Committee this week cleared the bill for action by the full House. I am hopeful that the measure will be enacted before the adjournment of the 93rd Congress.

Bethel Head Start

Last Thursday, Louise Rebillier treated us to an early Thanksgiving dinner—turkey, gravy, and all the fixin's!

Christian Robiller left us Monday for a stay in the hospital. He will be having a tonsillectomy on Tuesday.

The mothers will be having a coffee meeting on Wednesday to discuss plans for a rummage sale and a Christmas basket raffle. The rummage sale should be around the middle of December.

Almost all of the Children's "gardens" have started to grow.

The children are looking forward to Thanksgiving and the Thanksgiving recess that will give us a long week end. They've made turkeys with real feathers provided by Lynda Haegle. The children have also been enjoying films on various subjects. They already have established favorites. Hope you all have a Happy Thanksgiving.

We have had a Tonka Truck donated by Clukey's Pharmacy. Volunteers have been Virginia Learned, Lynda Haegle and Norman Stone.

Well, last week was a messy one! Wednesday, Edleen Fraser, Candy Howard and Louise Chapman, our community aide, took Shirley Bales, Lorie Howard, and Edleens older son, Bruce, to Dr. Lebel's in Lewiston for tooth extractions. They barely made it back before the bad weather really hit. On Thursday our class was called off because of the storm. We have parents bussing our children and because we are using private cars we usually do cancel on bad days.

On Monday we started our dental follow-ups. Monday evening there was a parent meeting with Jane Wardwell, Rumford Community Hospital, giving a talk on nutrition and bad eating habits. Those present were Ann Patlen, Queda Billings, Edleen Fraser, Carol and Irving York, Judy Bean, Sandra Savage and Louise Chapman.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank all the people who thought of me during my stay in the hospital and for the cards and letters I received. Very special "Thank You's" to the Drama Club and the Junior Class for their flowers and to Dorothy and Lori Boyce and the Methodist Church for their gifts.

Some of the responsibilities that Neil has on his job include the set-up of new snowmobiles; maintenance and repairs on snowmobiles, chain saws, snowblowers, etc. Through this employment he will get considerable experience in all phases of small engine repair, giving him a good background for future employment as a small engine mechanic after he completes his education. Neil has also attended a Ski Doo Training Clinic, for which he is receiving his certificate in the accompanying photo.

With the time that Neil has left following his school work and employment, he enjoys hunting, fishing, ski-dooing, and "working with anything that has a motor on it."

FROM WASHINGTON: Hathaway Reports

Sen. William D. Hathaway

Some time ago I was asked to co-sponsor a bill which would create a Federal Domestic Development Bank. The function of this bank would be to provide loans, loan guarantees, and technical assistance for the support and expansion of public facilities and private businesses in economically depressed and urban areas.

Given the state of our economy, and the conservative posture of our traditional sources of capital, I felt such an institution would prove invaluable in putting some risk capital on the line for use in our depressed areas.

This week I agreed to co-sponsor the bill, reserving for myself the right to amend the bill when it comes to the floor for action. Those amendments will be designed to accomplish three major goals:

1—to narrow the focus of the Bank's activities to those projects most likely to expand employment opportunities in depressed rural or urban areas.

2—to increase the levels of funding available to the bank.

3—to assure that the bank will operate in close proximity with those it is intended to serve and will maintain a risk-loving posture as benefits an entity intended to be a source of venture capital.

The latter amendment is crucial to the success of this bank. Far too often programs are designed with worthy goals, and those who administer those programs sit in offices located in urban centers and never have physical contact with those they serve. If this bank is to serve depressed rural and urban centers, then its offices and decision makers must be in a position to see, touch, and feel the problems with which they must deal.

And the need for this entity is obvious. The cost of capital, even for highly sought blue chip investments, is at an all time high and in many cases is simply unavailable at any price. Venture capital is almost non-existent, particularly in those areas where the economy is not healthy—depressed rural and urban areas.

The results of this is that capital starved areas are trapped in a situation over which they have no practical control. An adequately funded bank, located in and directed toward those areas in the most trouble, could not only increase employment and productivity of the depressed area, but benefit our economy as a whole.

Economic development is not the sole property of a highly industrialized, urban community. It is farms and dairies, small businesses and light industry. The key to unlocking this economic potential is venture or risk capital, and the legislation will respond to this glaring need.

HUGH BROWN

Hugh L. Brown died Monday, Nov. 25, 1974, at a Bridgton hospital.

He was born at Bethel, May 8, 1914, the son of Levi and Hattie Morrill Brown. He had lived most of his life in Bethel, moving to Bridgton seven years ago. Mr. Brown was employed by the State of Maine and was a veteran of World War II. He was a member of the Mundt-Allen Post, American Legion.

Surviving are son, Hugh L. Brown, Jr., Auburn; two brothers, Merton and Vernon, both of Bethel; and a grandchild.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon, Nov. 29, at 2 o'clock at the Greenleaf funeral home. Burial will be at the Woodland Cemetery.

CONRAD LAMB

Conrad W. Lamb died Sunday night, November 24, 1974 at the VA Hospital, Togus, where he had been a patient several weeks.

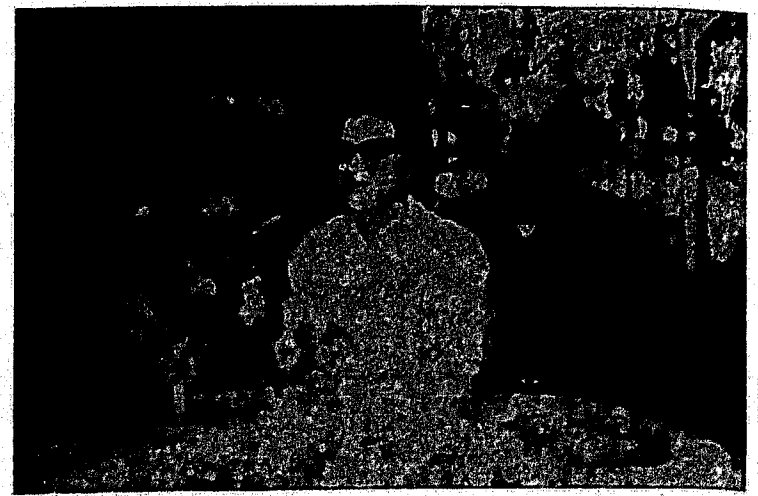

He was born at Rangeley, Jan. 2, 1900, the son of Joseph and Anna Bigelow Lamb. He graduated from Rangeley High School and married the former Celia Smith at Rangeley, June 24, 1919. Mrs. Lamb died April 21, 1970. Mr. Lamb was a veteran of World War I, having served with the U. S. Army. The family moved to Bethel from Rangeley in 1927 and came to West Paris in 1932. He had worked as manager of the A and P Store in Bethel and as manager of the First National Store in West Paris. He later organized the Lamb Insurance Agency which he ran for several years in conjunction with a filling station, retiring in 1958.

Mr. Lamb was a life member of Jackson-Silver AL Post Locke Mills, and had served as county commander.

Surviving are four sons, Stanton of Philadelphia, Pa., J. Hayward of Charleston, S. C., Newton and Sayward, both of West Paris; two daughters, Mrs. Elaine Blossom, North Branford, Conn., and Mrs. Jean Whittemore, Norway; a brother, J. Hubert of Bangor; 18 grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

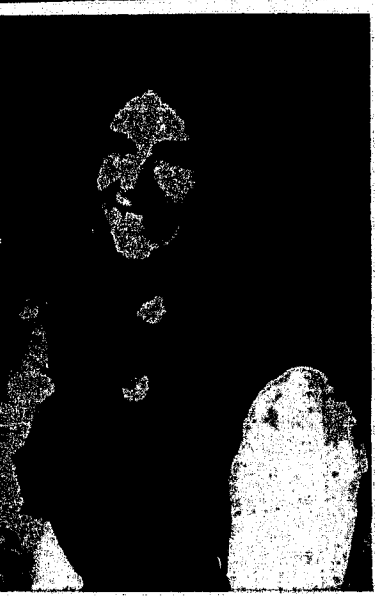

Funeral services were held at the I. W. Andrews and Son funeral home, South Woodstock, Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 27. Burial was in the Wayside Cemetery, West Paris.
